The Basic Rescue Task Forces Course is designed to be an introduction to the Rescue Task Force concept which is a major change in doctrine for EMS & Law Enforcement. This is a two-day course that is designed to train the provider in lifesaving techniques for active shooter situations, bombings and MCI scenarios. The course offers multiple in-depth training scenarios that are used to drive home lifesaving techniques. The rescue task force brings trained day to day EMS providers and partners them with law enforcement on scene to rapidly enter secured areas of an active shooter incident. This enables the teams to provide triage, emergent care and patient extrication to a casualty collection point or treatment area. This course is designed to bring EMS together with law enforcement to collaboratively train as a rescue team. The course will include classroom instruction and fast-paced field training exercises. A TECC certificate of completion, quick clot certification, and NAEMT B-CON certifications are included upon successful completion of the training program.
